

Monterrey/Montemorelos – July, 2009

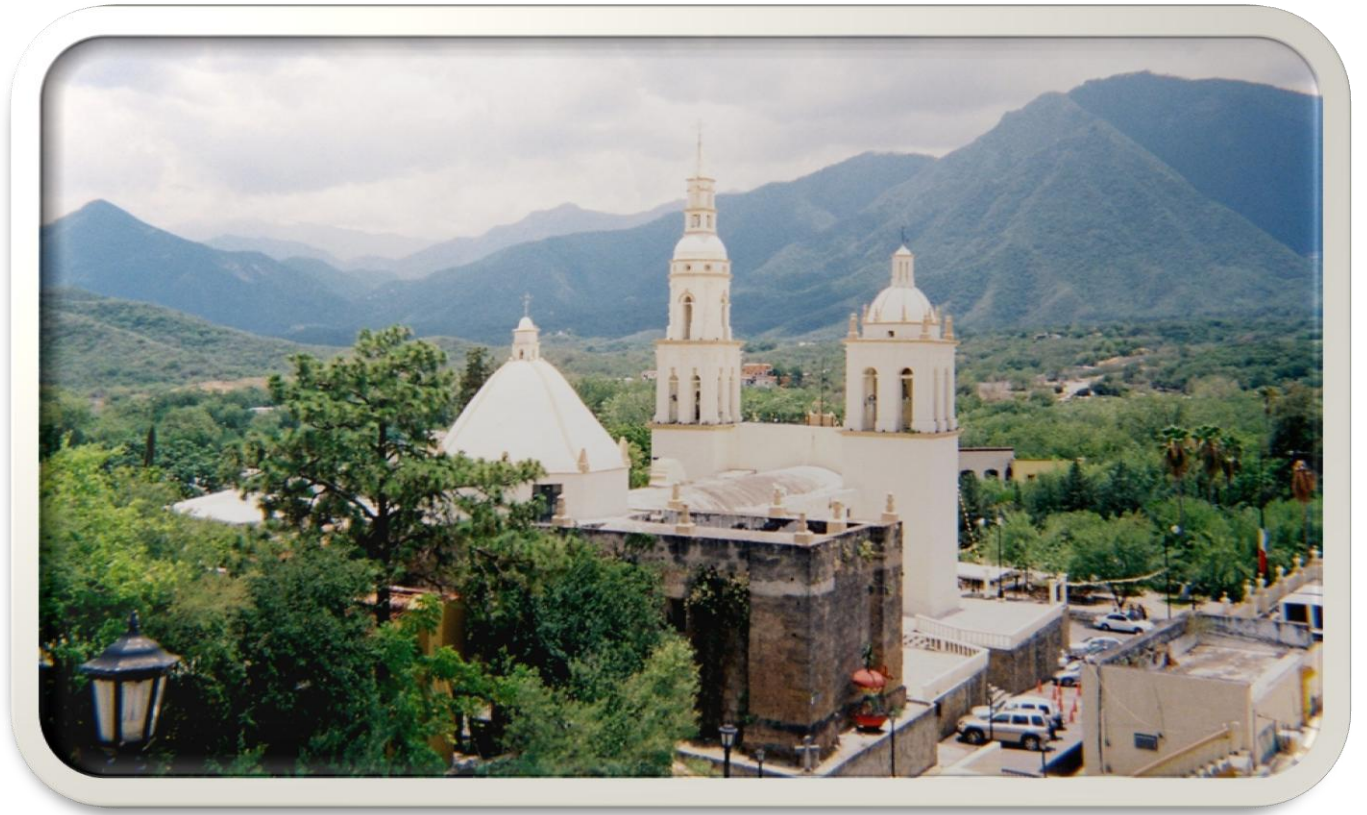

The following pictures were taken with a little Kodak disposable camera.

The central plaza, fountain and church of Santiago, NL.
Workers are setting up for a carnival.

Large metallic sculpture suspended over road, approx. 3-4 m wingspan. Santiago,
NL.

View over Santiago toward Monterrey Peaks National Park.

An odd sculpture --- apple core, lizards, butterflies, and a fleur-de-lis.
I've no idea of the significance of this to Santiago.

Below: Presa de la Boca area – reservoir formed by La Boca Dam on the Rio Sabinas.

Bahia Escondida is the developed area at center right on opposite shore.

Cascada la Cola de Caballo

Upper falls at Cola de Caballo park.
